Club News

Hi everyone. I hope you are all well and ready for Christmas. If not, sit in a darkened room and get stuck into this special Christmas edition of Vignettes. You know it makes sense.

We had a great night on Monday night at the Greyhound in Siddington with David Wallis once again at the helm as quizmaster setting some pretty difficult questions and a few tests. In the end it was the 'Superior SLR's' who won out on the day so well done to Colin Hoskins, Paul Jones, Steve Johnston and Gary Gleghorn.

The turnout of 24 of us was just 3 shy of the booking as Mike Cheeseman, Rob Gorthy and Bex sadly all went down with the lurgy and had to pull out. I hope they have now recovered, particularly Bex who is off the balmy shores of Iceland this weekend. I hope you make it Bex.

Lucy's team at the Greyhound did a sterling job of getting the food out on time and I've not seen any dissenters on that front which is good to see. My fish pie was super. Everybody paid as well so that was a relief!! We've booked the room again next year for the same Monday (14th Dec 2026) so it's just a matter of twisting David's arm again to be quizmaster. Maybe he will finally find that cruise he's been threatening to escape on!! Here's the final scores:

The Superior SLRs	56.0
The Hyperfocal Hoorays	52.5
The Shutter Smoothies	50.5
The Monopod Maestros	46.5
The Lens Hood Loungers	46.0
The Compact Cuties	37.5

Here's Dave with his weekly roundup:

Programme Secretary's Review

Hi everyone. Many thanks to David and Martyn for organising another fun-filled quiz evening at the Greyhound on Monday night to round off our calendar year. Congratulations to the winning team, 'The Superior SLR's' (see Martyn's team list above). I'm not sure if David will publish the full results and team members, but some of us might not be bothered if he's lost them. [Don't worry Dave, we've just listed the teams!]. Our team (The Lens Hood Loungers) didn't quite come last. I think we did OK on the general knowledge rounds, in fact we might have won them but we didn't do so well on the African countries or drinks logos though. I think we were hampered by not having a geographer or alcoholic on our team!

So now we can have a well-earned Christmas break before we meet again on Zoom on the 5th January for Charlie Waite's lecture 'Behind The Photograph'. It should be a high quality evening.

Charlie has been an advocate of 'the photograph' and the importance of engaging with the landscape through photography for over 40 years. His style is unique in that his photographs convey a spiritual quality of serenity and calm. He has established a worldwide reputation for his particular approach to his work. His photographs are held in private and corporate collections throughout the world.

Charlie conducts his lectures with passion, humour and grace, and takes the audience on a colourful and enchanting journey. Highly illustrated, his lectures are enjoyable, uplifting and memorable with many finding inspiration to explore the natural world further, embarking on their own personal journey with or without a camera.

Note the comment that 'his photographs are held in private and corporate collections throughout the world'. Well, you can all have a chance to own one too as Charlie has donated a super signed A3 print ('Valensole') which we are going to frame and raffle later in the season. More on this great opportunity to follow later.

Note as this will be a remote Zoom meeting it will be an earlier start time of 7:00pm. The Zoom log in details will be circulated when available. We will be joined on this occasion by some members from Northleach Photographic Group and Kineton Camera Club, so don't worry if you see some new faces, you will be in the right Zoom!

In the meantime have a great Christmas everyone, a happy new year and see you in January. Now where's that map of Africa gone.....

*Cheers
Dave*

Rule of Thirds

Time for a bit of education - Rule of thirds photography getting a bit boring? Try the golden ratio instead

The compositional technique of the rule of thirds is sometimes deemed too simplistic or even boring. However, if you're starting out on your photography journey, it's a simple and reliable method of capturing pleasing compositions, allowing you to focus on other areas you might be struggling with, such as the exposure triangle or camera controls. But as you start to learn more about compositional theory, you may find the rule of thirds to be lacking. And yet, what makes the rule of thirds so useful is that it can be applied to so many different situations. Unlike the rule of odds, leading lines, and a frame within a frame, the rule of thirds is an overarching compositional principle that can be applied to almost any image. Thankfully, there's a more advanced alternative: the golden ratio. Take a look at this article:

External Exhibitions and Competitions

Birmingham's first photographer finally getting the recognition he deserves after 180 years?

Within 48 hours of photography's public announcement in Paris on 19 August 1839, George Shaw had created Birmingham's first daguerreotype. This wasn't luck. While most people were still trying to understand what Daguerre's mysterious process meant, Shaw was already coating silver plates with light-sensitive chemicals in his Queens College laboratory. Check out the story here together with info about a new exhibition:

Nothing like a good old photo comedy award and this one is up there.

An image of a high-fiving gorilla has taken the comedic crown at the Nikon Comedy Wildlife Awards 2025. The photograph of the great ape, dubbed 'High Five', depicts a young male high-kicking his way across the Virunga Mountains landscape (Ministry of Silly Walks, anyone?). Check out the winners here:

Northern Lights Photographer of the Year 2025

The Northern Lights Photographer of the Year 2025 encompasses everything from a stunning ice cave to a pilot's view above the clouds. When glacier guide and photographer Tori Harp first spotted the circular ice cave, she spent eight months monitoring the ice as it formed, envisioning a shot of an ice climber framed by the cave with the New Zealand stars in the background. But when the photographer finally had the chance to make the shot a reality, a surprise aurora made the shot even more epic than the original vision. Now, Harp and 24 other photographers are among the Northern Lights Photographer of the Year, an annual photo contest hosted by travel photography blog and photography tour host Capture the Atlas. ### Architectural/Historic category of this year's Tokyo Foto Awards

Buddhist temples in Japan are major tourist attractions, and the most popular have been photographed literally millions of times. So if you're entering an image of a temple into a competition, it's going to be an uphill struggle to get noticed, especially within Japan itself. Nonetheless, awards judges were drawn towards this shot by Rintaro Ukon, who's somehow managed to portray one of the country's most familiar architectural wonders in a way that's more visual poetry than tourist snap. Byodo-in's Phoenix Hall was converted to a temple Featured on Japan's 10-yen coin, it's one of the most photographed places in Japan today, and visitors queue daily to shoot it straight across the pond, to capture the full reflection in their lens.

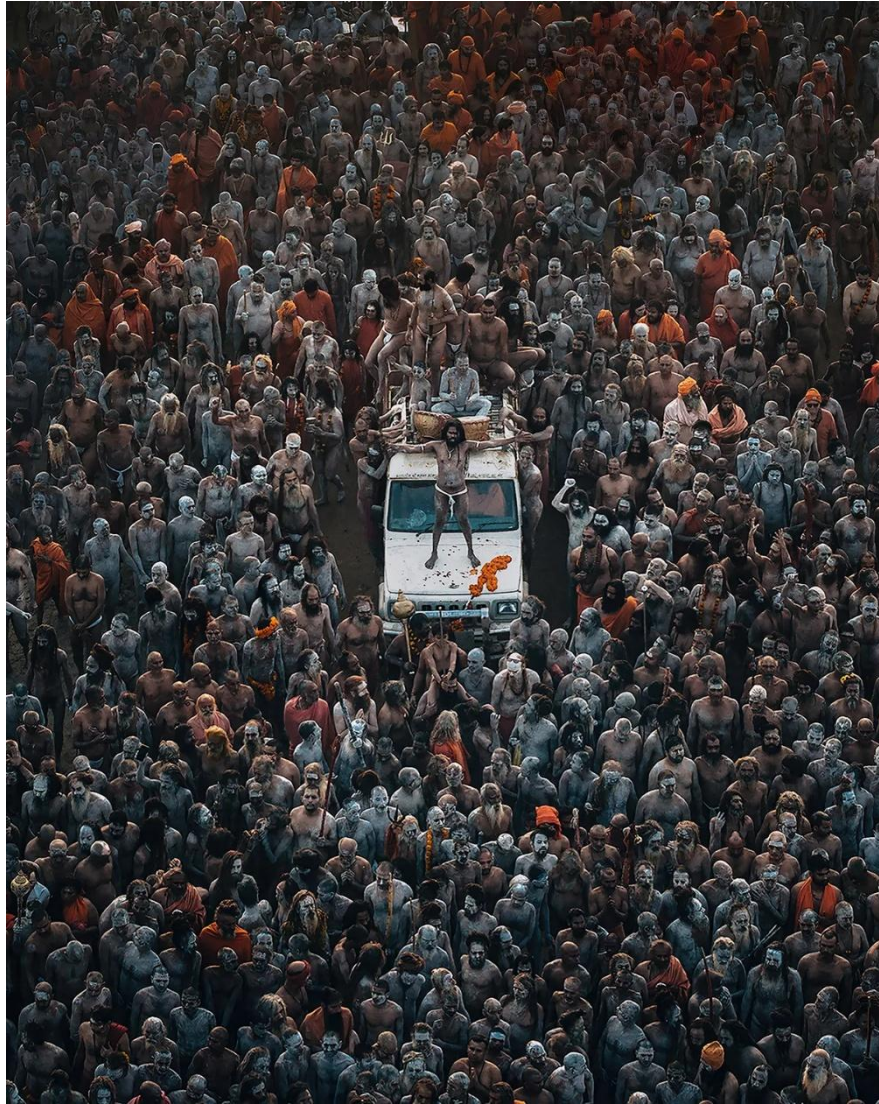

Here, Ukon leans into that convention but innovates in terms of technical settings and composition, to create something quite different from the norm. This highly original shot won him Silver in the Architectural/Historic category of this year's Tokyo Foto Awards. See all the winners below.

International Photography Awards (IPA) - Event Photographer of the Year

Photographer Savadmon Avalachamveettil, known as a standout shooter in documentary and aerial visual storytelling, has done it again. Just a few months ago, the shot titled Mahakumbh – World's Largest Gathering was globally recognized at the International Photography Awards (IPA). With this win, Avalachamveettil secured the title of Event Photographer of the Year in the Professional category. Now, the same astonishing aerial image capturing a once-in-144-years ritual at India's Kumbh Mela has secured Silver in the People/Event category at the 2025 Tokyo International Foto Awards (TIFA). Check out the winners below.

Photo tourism and the environment

Nature in Focus 2025 winners

A split-second decision and well-chosen gear combine to create a stunning wildlife moment. Sometimes the best shots happen when your subject takes matters out of your hands. One photographer Kashyap Naresh Raval discovered this truth first-hand while photographing a fishing spider at the water's edge in Kollur, Karnataka, in the south-west of India. Raval managed to capture this spontaneous moment with a mirror-perfect reflection in the still water. And his photo would go on to earn runner-up honors in the Animal Behaviour category at the Nature in Focus Photography Competition 2025, which received nearly 16,000 submissions from over 1,250 photographers across more than 38 countries.

Definitions of Set Subjects

SQUARE FORMAT: typically refers to using a square aspect ratio (1:1) intentionally as a creative constraint or theme. This can be achieved in camera, or by cropping during post processing. So, you are being asked to explore how composition, balance, or storytelling changes when restricted to a square. The square naturally invites symmetry, central framing, and geometric precision and works well for portraits, minimalism, or patterns. Rule of thirds still applies but feels different, centred subjects often look stronger in square, and negative space becomes more powerful. Explore how the square changes emotional or narrative impact. How does it shift the viewer's attention compared to landscape or portrait orientation?

AUTOMOTIVE: A follow- on from Amy Shore's Presentation in October. A chance to explore and creatively interpret vehicles and the world around them as your primary theme. This can go far beyond simply photographing a car — it's an invitation to tell stories, explore design, motion, culture, and even emotion through the lens of automotive imagery.

IN THE KITCHEN: Typically, a scene encompassing components or activities that you would find in the kitchen. This could be food still life, equipment and utensils or an activity such as stirring a pot.
