Club News

Hi everyone. I hope you are all well. I'm sitting here typing 'V' watching Points West on the Beeb when suddenly Jack Boskett's name appears as one of the image contributors showing the northern lights. For those of you new to the club, Jack was one of the highlight speakers to the club last season.

We had a very good turnout of members on Monday night all itching to see how their images fared in the judging of competition D. Judge Richard Atkinson from the Stroud Camera Club did a very good job, particularly given that this was his first judging night. Here's Fin with his summary:

Competition Secretary's Review

Another excellent evening with detailed and constructive feedback on every image and print from our judge, Richard Atkinson from Stroud Camera Club.

The evening's Set Subject - Automotive obviously played directly to Richard's sweet spot as a self-professed "Petrol Head" and this added an additional dimension to the discussion of each image. I liked Richard's comments on framing - particularly some interesting new thoughts on how some simple framing mistakes can ruin a perfectly good print. It was also really pleasing to see the evening's 18 awards going to 15 different members.

And finally just a reminder that Richard has asked for feedback following his very first live performance judging last night - please email me at competitions@cirencestercameraclub.org and I will compile a list of anonymous comments and pass to Richard. When Richard made that announcement at the end of the evening the view from where I was sitting had the look of a group who could not believe they had just banished another Faithful! So it is on to Comp E on 16th February - 33 DPI

*Entries and 21 Prints plus our guest judge for the evening - Martin Fry.
All the best
Fin*

Thanks Fin and here's the results from Monday plus the winning images.

Programme Secretary's review

Hi everyone. Well done to everyone who picked up an award (or two in some cases!) in the Competition D Automotive results. I was surprised when Richard said at the end that it was his first time judging. He seemed very confident and experienced to me and produced some excellent feedback. I will have to speak to Cotswold Mounts though about the thickness of their mounts and boards. They perhaps need to go for a more bendy approach like Paper Spectrum! The importance of being careful about titles also came across. While a good title can help get the message behind your submission across, if the judge doesn't like or understand the title, or feels it doesn't fit the image, then it may count against you. Having said that we saw some great images and well done again to the very worthy winners.

Next week we have another Take 4 member evening with four varied presentations:

- Andy Dipper - A Second Year at Cirencester College
- Brian Champion - The Brain Switch (Photography at UCSD)
- John Crew - Charity Photography
- Gary Gleghorn - Creating a Stubbs

It will be our usual 7:30pm start. I hope to see you all then.

Just a couple of other items.

I asked Ruth about her excellent AV presentation in the Travelogue evening. If you are interested, the software she used was CapCut. Here's the link:

<https://www.capcut.com/>

Finally we have a change in the programme on February 9th. We will now have an external speaker, Steve Varman, taking us through his thoughts on Eclectic and Creative Photography. Full details here:

WCPF INTER-CLUB DIGITAL AND STROUD & CHELTENHAM BATTLE

Entry Summary for Cirencester Camera Club

Paul has been in touch following the choice of images to go forward to the WCPF inter-club digital competition and the next club battle against Stroud and Cheltenham.

Hi everyone. Following the battle selection evening at the end of last year we have now met as a selection committee, and both considered our entries for the WCPF digital entry and the Stroud vs Cheltenham evening in March. The overall range and diversity of images is of a very high quality and we have had to make some difficult decisions. We have decided that there will be quite a difference between the entries for both upcoming competitions.

Summarised below are the entries that we have selected for WCPF and below that are some of the further images that are definitely in the mix for Stroud and Cheltenham. There will of course be others added but as I am sure you will agree we are blessed with a very strong set of current images.

The rationale for the WCPF selection is ones that have immediate impact because the judges only have a few seconds to view each image.

With the latter battle, we are looking specifically to select images which are ideal for prints (or have already been successful prints) and given that the judge has much more time to view them, we have some more flexibility in terms of subject matter and type of image

Well done to everyone who has images currently in the selection pot.

CISP

Just a reminder – CISP

Yes CISP (Cheltenham International Salon of Photography) launched in the new year. We regularly support the competition promoted by Cheltenham Camera Club and generally get some notable acceptances so why not have a go. Of course, the CISP team always present a great AV evening for us in the Autumn of the 'accepted' images so it's good to support a local club. The more images you enter, the cheaper it is. Closing date is 29th March.

Here's the details:

External Exhibitions and Competitions

Nature in Art, Twigworth - WPOTY has returned

It's the big one. Yes, the Wildlife Photographer of the Year (WPOTY) returns to Nature in Art, Twigworth, Gloucester, on the 3rd Feb, closing on the 12th April. Probably the most important of all the wildlife photography competition, the exhibition is always well worth a visit if not a bit harrowing when it comes to the photojournalism section. See the details below and a separate link to the exhibition contributors from the Natural History Museum's website.

Are you a National Trust Member? Hidcote Photo Competition

Even if you aren't, why not keep an eye out for the Hidcote Photo Competition which this National Trust property holds each year. The reward is inclusion in a photographic exhibition and last years winners are currently on display in Hidcote House. See the photo of the exhibition below and a link to the Hidcote website.

I visited the exhibition last week and the images are of a quality well within our members skill base so think about having a go. Here's a link to keep an eye on for entry dates etc.

Into space travel?

A subject which can divide opinion given the troubles we are having on earth but you can't help but marvel at the tech involved. Or so I thought!! See below. Just winding back a bit, you are probably aware of the Artemis Space Programme to land man back on the moon. Crewless Artemis 1 was launched a couple of years ago to fly around the moon on an elliptical orbit as a dry run for Artemis II which launches with a full crew in early Feb. It will take a similar flight around the moon and beyond to the furthest man has been in space to test systems in preparation for a possible moon landing next year. Take a look at the high quality YouTube video from the launch of Artemis I here. It's amazing:

<https://youtu.be/zctTKdQcmVA?si=ooDWbR6yt1nIXfM>

It got me thinking, what camera kit are they taking on Artemis II given that we should be in for some fantastic images and film? The Apollo programme way back used Hasselblads so I googled the obvious question. Here's the answer:

Artemis II's astronauts will have two Nikon D5 digital single-lens reflex cameras available inside the cabin. These are professional-grade still and video cameras, selected both for public affairs imagery and for the crew's own photographic priorities. Equipped with wide-angle and long-range lenses, the cameras are expected to capture everything from close-quarters life inside Orion to distant views through the spacecraft's windows during the lunar flyby. The choice of the Nikon D5 was not accidental. The camera is known for its low-noise performance and high dynamic range, qualities that allow it to handle the stark contrast between sunlit spacecraft surfaces and deep shadow in space. Just as critical for a deep-space mission, the D5 has shown strong resistance to radiation effects, helping ensure reliable operation beyond low Earth orbit where exposure levels are significantly higher. Still, it is an old camera by today's standards.

Well, that was a surprise. There will be some GoPro's as well and apparently NASA are looking at the Nikon D5 and Z9 for the Artemis III moon mission. Here's more info:

How did I get on with Blurb?

Well, Zoe in Blurb customer services is my new best friend! I'm not sure how but having been effectively blocked out of the Blurb website for a week from all devices and even different browsers, it suddenly came back on stream last Saturday. Still not quite sure why but, in short, here's the main points to consider from my first go:

- Watch Anthony Morganti and Julianne Kost YouTube channels on using the Book module in Lightroom - a tool which links straight to Blurb to create your Photobook.
- Look out for Blurb discount deals, they are constantly being released.
- Create a Lightroom 'Collection' of the images you want to include in your Photobook. Do all your processing first although you can make changes as you go - the Book module images in your Collection are linked seamlessly to the Develop module.
- You don't need to worry about the format of your images JPEG, Cr2, DNG, Tiff, etc. The upload process reconciles all formats.
- Once you start to use the images in your Collection, you can then create a dedicated Photo Book sub folder in the Book's 'Collection' folder which will be the one you will upload to Blurb through the Book module.
- There is a software glitch in Lightroom. If you include a comma in the book title file which Blurb needs (not the cover itself), the Photobook won't upload.
- If you are having trouble uploading your Photobook via Lightroom for any reason, there is an option in the Book module to download a pdf of your book out of Lightroom into a folder on your computer. This will be in two pdf's, 1) the Photobook cover and 2) the Photobook itself. If you then open the Blurb website you can 'test' if there are any issues with the Photobook pdf as Blurb will recognise the pdf's and guide you through the upload process, highlighting any issues on the way.
- You can order a 'clean' pdf version of your Photobook when you order the Photobook itself. The charge is a few pounds for this.

Let me know if you have any problems. But then again, I haven't got my first printed version back! More to learn I'm sure.

Definitions of Set Subjects

SQUARE FORMAT: typically refers to using a square aspect ratio (1:1) intentionally as a creative constraint or theme. This can be achieved in camera, or by cropping during post processing. So, you are being asked to explore how composition, balance, or storytelling changes when restricted to a square. The square naturally invites symmetry, central framing, and geometric precision and works well for portraits, minimalism, or patterns. Rule of thirds still applies but feels different, centred subjects often look stronger in square, and negative space becomes more powerful. Explore how the square changes emotional or narrative impact. How does it shift the viewer's attention compared to landscape or portrait orientation?

AUTOMOTIVE: A follow- on from Amy Shore's Presentation in October. A chance to explore and creatively interpret vehicles and the world around them as your primary theme. This can go far beyond simply photographing a car — it's an invitation to tell stories, explore design, motion, culture, and even emotion through the lens of automotive imagery.

IN THE KITCHEN: Typically, a scene encompassing components or activities that you would find in the kitchen. This could be food still life, equipment and utensils or an activity such as stirring a pot.
